FUND COMMENTARY

The Covid-19 pandemic has brought with it both significant social and economic consequences. The acute economic impact is already being felt both locally and globally, with equity markets selling off sharply as market participants try to gauge the short to medium term impact of the pandemic and associated economic toll. At the time of writing new case growth in key global economies appears to be plateauing or on the decline, although uncertainty surrounds post lockdown implications. Whilst SA is still in the early stages of our Covid-19 progression, the non-exponential case growth to date has provided some cause for optimism in the government's efforts to 'flatten the curve'. With SA entering the pandemic already in a technical recession, a key concern is the fragility of South Africa's fiscal and economic condition. The initial responses from the government, and SA Reserve Bank in particular, have been welcomed but it will be the execution of policy responses that will determine how SA fares in coming months and years. In terms of our investment process and our immediate response to the pandemic, reflecting these extraordinary times and heightened uncertainty we have added an additional margin of safety to all companies under coverage. This factors in our internal quality assessment of the company and the industry the business operates in. Using our risk framework, we continue to review our risk ratings across our universe and amend where necessary. Reflecting relative value and evolving risk assessments of companies under our coverage, we have selectively added to and reduced certain existing holdings as appropriate. Whilst we have no way of predicting how the next few weeks and months will play out, we believe that a long-term focus and sound investment process with a proven track record is more important than ever. Our quality centric investment strategy guides our portfolio composition and positions us in what we believe to be the best selection of companies with the highest quality management teams, strongest financial health and most sustainable long-term growth prospects. These qualities become even more important in these uncertain times, and are reflected in recent relative performance of the SF SCI Equity fund versus the JSE All Share Index.
