PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

Markets were volatile over the summer with US-China trade tensions and global growth concerns dominating sentiment. Global bond yields continued to fall, reflecting the expectation of lower interest rates. This has been beneficial for bondholders and pockets of the equity market which, like bonds, have defensive characteristics. By contrast, cyclically sensitive investments, such as financial and industrial stocks, have suffered. Underlying holdings in the portfolio reflected these market conditions. We saw strong returns from the SF Global Best Ideas fund, which emphasises high growth companies with defensible margins. However, the Lyrical Fund, which allocates to the unloved segments of the US market where better value is typically found, have delivered smaller gains this year. Overall the Fund declined by 2% in August, taking 2019 returns to 10.4%.

ACTIVE MANAGER IN FOCUS

The Stonehage Fleming Global Best Ideas Fund is the only in-house managed strategy in the portfolio, and currently represents approximately 7% of the fund. Managed by Gerrit Smit, this allocation offers focused exposure to high quality listed businesses, selected for their sustainable growth, competitive edge and value. There is an emphasis on the quality of management, free cash flow and sustainable dividend growth. Top holdings currently include Visa, Microsoft and Estée Lauder. The strategy has delivered strong outperformance over the broad market in recent years, and represents a core equity allocation.
