COMMENTARY

The S&P 500 index has completed one of its five best 65-day (3-month) recoveries since 1950. The S&P Technology index has recovered +48% since its GVC (Great Virus Crisis) low on 23 March.

Our Fund is well exposed to the Technology sector, with our Technology classified businesses making up the largest sector at a 26.4% weight. Other technology driven businesses that are not officially classified as such (Alphabet, Amazon) make up a further 9.3%. Four of the top five contributors to the Fund's performance in June (Tencent, Amazon, Microsoft, Adobe) are from this group.

COVID-19 is accelerating the Technology sector's relevance to the global economy to a major extent. This is particularly the case for Working From Home issues, providing the necessary networks, connections, and computing facilities. This facet further boosts the need for technology enablers in the public cloud, data handling and office automation space.

Along with this, the boost to e-Commerce caused by the global lockdowns has been the largest and quickest windfall any sector has probably ever got. Its share of the overall retail market increased in a matter of weeks by what it earlier achieved in a number of years. Because of virus fears, consumers have also abandoned the use of cash in favour of digital payment almost overnight. The need for food delivery services and general online sales exploded, along with streaming and home entertainment services.

Everyone hopes that effective vaccines will imminently be developed and that GVC can phase out as soon as possible. Even if this best scenario may come to fruition, we think the world and many personal outlooks have changed and that the above scenarios are more long-term structural than short-term tactical in nature. The future has arrived much earlier than expected for many businesses. Our portfolio is well positioned in this context.

The current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TERs. Transaction Costs are a necessary cost in administering the Financial Product and impacts Financial Product returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of Financial Product, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. The Total Investment Charges ("TIC")⁶ comprise both the TER and the TC.*

- Historical data may not be a reliable indication for the future.
- The risk category shown is not guaranteed and may shift over time.
- The lowest category does not mean 'risk free'.

The risk and reward profile is based on the A share class.

The risk and reward indicator demonstrates where the Fund ranks in terms of its potential risk and return. The higher the number the greater the potential reward but the greater the risk of losing money. The above ranking is based on research of how such investments have performed in the past and you should note that the Fund may perform differently in the future.

The Fund is in risk category 5 due to its level of exposure to equity investments, the prices of which can go down as well as up.

Investors may not get back their original investment.

The Fund is subject to risks which are not included in the risk reward indicator calculation:

A change to the Fund's tax status or the applicable tax legislation in the markets within which the Fund invests could affect the value of an investor's shares.

RISK FACTORS

Stonehage Fleming Global Best Ideas Equity Fund (the "Fund") is an equity fund. Investors should be willing and able to assume the risks of equity investing in particular, fluctuations in market price, adverse issuer or market information and the fact that equity securities rank below other corporate securities, including debt securities, in right of payment in the event of issuer insolvency. The value of the Fund's portfolio changes daily and can be affected by changes in currencies, interest rates, general market conditions and other political, social and economic developments, as well as specific matters relating to the companies in whose securities the Fund invests. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio.

Changes in the rates of exchange between currencies may cause the value of investments to go up or down in the reporting currency. In general, underlying investments denominated in foreign currency are not hedged back into the reporting currency. Among the factors that may influence currency values are trade balances, the levels of short-term interest rates, differences in relative values of similar assets in different currencies, long-term opportunities for investment and capital appreciation and political developments. Values may also be affected by developments relating to controls and restrictions on foreign currency remittance of proceeds of investments in a non-sterling jurisdiction.

All investments risk the loss of capital. No guarantee or representation is made that the Fund will achieve its investment objective. The value of investments may go down as well as up and the distributions can also go down or up and you may not receive back the full value of your initial investment. The risks outlined here are some of the more specific risks applicable to investment in the Fund and investors' attention is drawn to Appendix II of the Prospectus which provides more information on the types of risk factors investors should consider.

Whilst every effort is made to provide investors with accurate and up to date information, some of the information may be rendered inaccurate by changes in applicable laws and regulations. For example, the levels and bases of taxation may change. No information in this document should be interpreted as investment advice. If you feel unsure about the suitability of this investment for you, please consult with a professional financial adviser.

The portfolio may include foreign investments and the following additional risks may apply: liquidity constraints when selling foreign investments and risk of non-settlement of trades; macroeconomic and political risks associated with the country in which the investment is made; risk of loss on foreign exchange transactions and investment valuation due to fluctuating exchange rates; risk of foreign tax being applicable; potential limitations on availability of market information which could affect the valuation and liquidity of an investment. All of these risks could affect the valuation of an investment in the fund.
