COMMENTARY

We invest for sustainable growth in dividend income, predominantly to benefit from the growth in the capital value of our business following the dividend stream over time. Sustainable organic growth in the industry and the particular business is therefore of paramount importance to us. We view the healthcare industry as a good example of such potential sustainable growth, as the world population ages and the wealth of the emerging market middle classes expands.

We have been invested in Fresenius SE almost since inception of the Fund. The share has appeared in the list of our top ten holdings since last year. Its strategic value lies in its focussed and entrenched position in its three main healthcare businesses of private hospitals, the world's largest dialysis clinic operator and a producer of infusion products and generic medicines for acute care. All three divisions have an excellent performance record.

Fresenius will soon become one of the world's largest private hospital operators with the acquisition of Quirónsalud, Spain's largest private hospital operator, financed through cash resources and taking on cheap debt. This division will make ~40% contribution to group profits after the acquisition is completed. The synergistic benefits of the acquisition are expected to make the transaction profitable on a net basis in the first year already.

We know Fresenius as being financially very disciplined, actively reinvesting in its businesses to ensure continued growth and ultimately sustainable dividend growth potential. It does not dilute shareholders by issuing paper for acquisitions, but continuously utilises its balance sheet well in the interest of shareholders. It remains focussed in its particular healthcare activities, and in the current global environment of sub-par economic growth we expect Fresenius to continue to deliver well.

RISK FACTORS

Stonehage Fleming Global Best Ideas Equity Fund (the "Fund") is an equity fund. Investors should be willing and able to assume the risks of equity investing in particular, fluctuations in market price, adverse issuer or market information and the fact that equity securities rank below other corporate securities, including debt securities, in right of payment in the event of issuer insolvency. The value of the Fund's portfolio changes daily and can be affected by changes in currencies, interest rates, general market conditions and other political, social and economic developments, as well as specific matters relating to the companies in whose securities the Fund invests. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio.

Changes in the rates of exchange between currencies may cause the value of investments to go up or down in the reporting currency. In general, underlying investments denominated in foreign currency are not hedged back into the reporting currency. Among the factors that may influence currency values are trade balances, the levels of short-term interest rates, differences in relative values of similar assets in different currencies, long-term opportunities for investment and capital appreciation and political developments. Values may also be affected by developments relating to controls and restrictions on foreign currency remittance of proceeds of investments in a non-sterling jurisdiction.

All investments risk the loss of capital. No guarantee or representation is made that the Fund will achieve its investment objective. The value of investments may go down as well as up and the distributions can also go down or up and you may not receive back the full value of your initial investment. The risks outlined here are some of the more specific risks applicable to investment in the Fund and investors' attention is drawn to Appendix II of the Prospectus which provides more information on the types of risk factors investors should consider.

Whilst every effort is made to provide investors with accurate and up to date information, some of the information may be rendered inaccurate by changes in applicable laws and regulations. For example, the levels and bases of taxation may change. No information in this document should be interpreted as investment advice. If you feel unsure about the suitability of this investment for you, please consult with a professional financial adviser.
